Natural Talent

Cara Samuels

She saw a small change
He saw a big difference
She was young and immature, yet wise for her age
He was surprised and eager, and consulted her more and more each time
Her insight was unusual, for she had no proper education
Her talent was effortless, as it appealed to those above her
He was moved
He was interested
He loved the final results
She was intimidated and shy, but her knowledge of this subject was bold
She was his apprentice. They worked together to achieve his goal
He was her master
She dutifully responded knowing the consequences
He understood the value of her contribution
She understood what it meant to be loyal
Her small change seemed meager
He discovered a natural talent within her.
